SECRETARY'S SCRABBLES

I was hoping to be able to tell you about last months meeting and provide info about this months meeting, but that is not to be. However, King and other counties have now moved to phase 2 of COVID19 restriction so there is hope.

In addition to working for customers in my business, I have been doing upholstery work here in my shop. I have a couple of pictures. I don't know if there is enough space to include them. One picture is the "before", showing the back seat of my '32 President; the next upholstery project. The other picture shows just completed back seat cushion, arm rest and door panel in my '41 Cad. These are big projects, but ideal for winter because my sewing machine is in the warm house. I do have a commercial type sewing machine which makes a difference. There are many parts to make up the upholstery in a sedan: headliner, front and back seats, 4 door panels, 2 kick panels, front and back carpet, arm rests (4 or 5) and a bunch of smaller pieces like B pillar inside covers. Takes a lot of time and a lot of patience, especially when first tries don't fit and need to be done over. That is not to mention when second tries don't fit either. That is when I am thinking I should have bought a kit. And that is also when I remember others telling me they paid a lot for a kit and it didn't fit well. Plus the preparation for the upholstery is the same either way. You still have to remove the old stuff and repair the padding, etc.

I have never actually considered a kit or hiring someone to do the whole job. I can't let someone else have all the fun!

I hope everyone is staying safe and healthy as winter begins to fade away. One of the national "experts" says everything will be back to normal by Christmas. I am ready now!!

God Bless, Don Andersen, Secretary

(See page 3 for the final result on the seat. Nice job Don. Ed)

EDITOR'S CORNER

What did I do this month? Not much according to the result I can show.. Plan was to install windows in the doors. Should be a simple task. Well, that might be true, but I never got that far. Found one vent window without glass and the other side not usable except to use for pattern. Looked around for ready made glass. Found one outfit but no response to my question. So I went to my local auto glass shop in Issaquah. And they did a really nice job, including installing the glass in the frame. So while waiting for the vent window it was time to install door latches a locks. Simple job, right? Wrong!! I had a box full of door locks and another filled with keys. Well I could not find a single key that would fit any of the locks. In the process I think I learned a new profession. Studying the locks I could see there were three different styles of the ones I had. It should be possible to change the locks innards to make them fit at least one of the keys. How do you get inside the locks? Two of them had a lid on top (bottom) of the lock mechanism. Two different types. See the pictures. The top one has the lid removed. The middle one has the lid on it. Different styles, but either one would fit my car. As you can see on the top one, there are 6 small holes. Now inside those holes were two tiny pins and a spring. The middle one had the same kind of pins and springs. I decided fairly fast that playing with those springs and pins would not be a fun job. Now for the third one, there did not seem to be any way to get inside. But thanks to the Studebaker web site I found the solution. Drill a 1/8" hole into the lock body, but not too far and you could push in the release mechanism and the tumble came tumbling out. This lock used a wafer system, much easier to deal with. Here I have to admit I cheated a little bit. I could find 4 wafers for each lock that I could use my key on. It is now easier to pick the lock for anybody who is so inclined. But do you really even want to lock a convertible? A short slice with a knife through the top would be a lot easier for anybody so inclined.

Now to try to install the window glass. I can already see a problem with the vent window rubber.

Good afternoon all,

The SDC site is new and there have been some questions about how to add events to it. It is a bit different, but definitely doable. See the message below from Mark Wheeler.

1. Go to the Studebaker web site at studebakerdriversclub.com
2. Click "Member Area" in the navigation bar (top right)
3. Click the "LOGIN – I am already a member" button
4. If you already have an on-line account registered, login using your credentials (username/password). If you don't have an on-line account already, then click the link to "register for on-line access"
5. Once logged in, click the "Resources" tab in the navigation bar, then select "Update Event Listing" from the drop-down menu
6. Read and agree to the "Terms and Conditions". (Check the "I agree..." box, then click the "Continue" button)
7. Click the "Add New Event" button at the top of the page

The rest should be self-explanatory

Let me know if you need any further assistance.
